Joint celebration World Poetry Day and Down Syndrome Awareness Day

Many thanks to everyone who supported our 'odd socks; day to help us celebrate Down Syndrome Awareness Day. This also coincided with World Poetry Day. As a result I have included a poem written by a parent of Nicholas which pulls together the two events wonderfully.

It was lovely to be able to welcome Andrew Ridding to our school today. Andrew very kindly helped give out certificates to our children on Thursday and joined in with the stall run by Mrs Zahler. Thank you to all who invested time in making this a special day. I hope the children managed to get a lot from the day.

It is always a pleasure to come to school and walk alongside our children in their educational journey. Our children have once again proven this week that they are very thoughtful and caring children. They also have great energy and interest in learning which has been exemplified with Reception Class visiting Greenlands farm and Year 5 visiting Walby Park Farm during the week.

Growing morning generated a lovely atmosphere in school with so much going on in the school grounds and the nursery and reception classes. Many thanks for your support.

Have a lovely weekend.
